School Food Standards

From 1st January 2015 the Department for Education introduced new school food standards.

These Standards are intended to help children develop healthy eating habits and ensure that they get the energy and nutrition they need across the whole school day. Variety is the key, with the provision of a wide range of foods across the menu and throughout the week. Variety means different fruits and vegetables, grains, pulses, and a selection of meat and fish on the menu.

As part of these changes, Tuesdays are now 'fruit only' desert days!
